- Feedback 1: like design of 10; incorporates personality from home and at Emory: Friend 1
- Feedback 2: The Blue Ridge Mountain Cut would be a nice addition: Friend 2
- Feedback 3: Sketch 10 looked the coolest: Dad
- Feedback 4: Etching around the outer layer was very cool.
- Feedback 5: Tennessee Flag was a nice design to add. Classmate 1.

Most Popular was 10; maybe incorporate TN flag into it

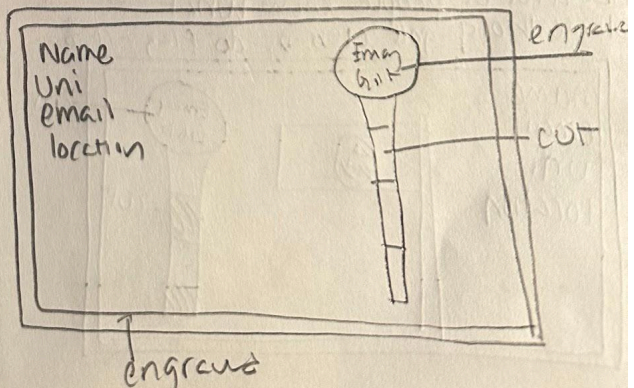

10.1 Sketch 1 revised

- Cera looks boring,
- add engraving around

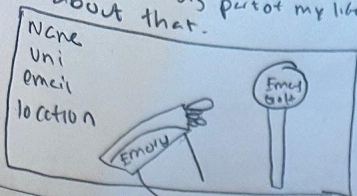

10.2 sketch 1 revised

- from 10.1, add a stripes layer cut to tee of golfball

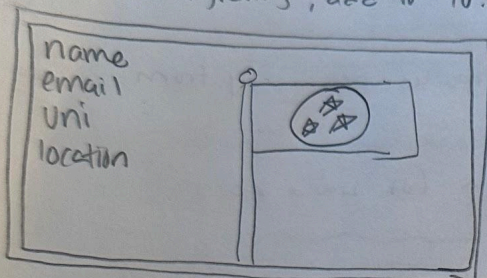

10.3

- Sketch 1 Revised
- Since golf is a big part of my life, add more about that.

10.5

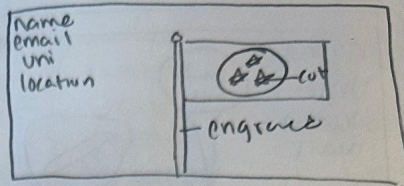

- Sketch 4 Revised
- liked the engraving, add to 10.4

engraved

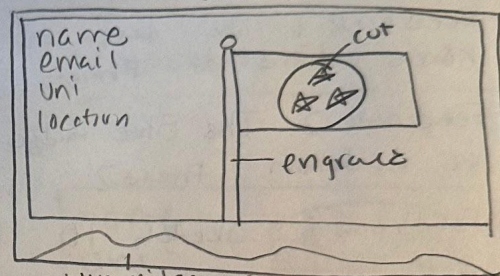

10.4

- Sketch 4 Revised
- make it look more like the flag of TN

10.6

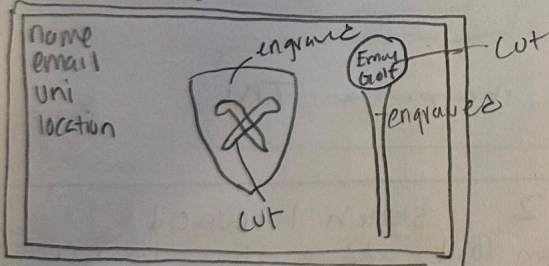

- Sketch 4 revised
- add the blue ridge mountains below in rim

blue ridge pking

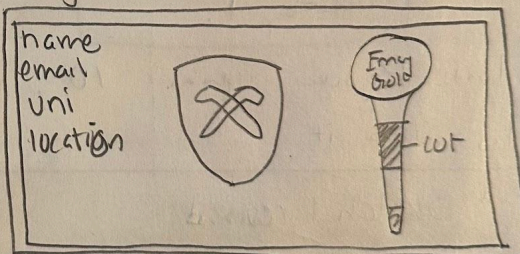

10.7

- Sketch 10 revised
- seems like there is too much on there, take off the mountains

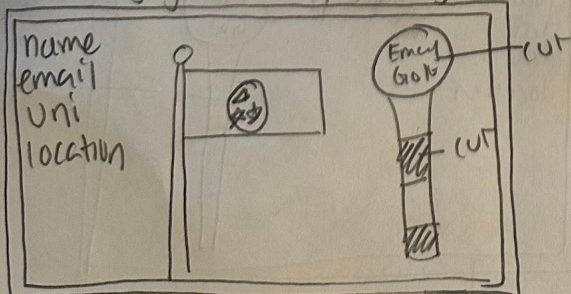

10.8

- Sketch 10 revised
- incorporate 10.1, striped cuts to golf tee, add to 10.7

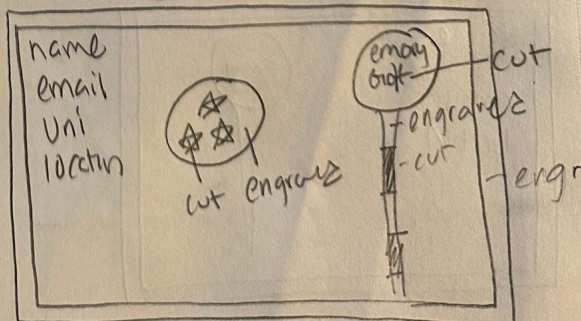

10.9

- Sketch 10 revised
- not a lot of people know what black-thorn golf club is, do flag - 10.8

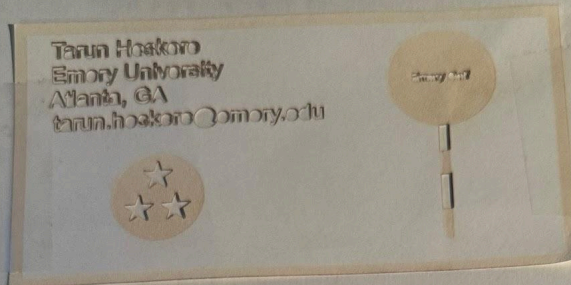

10.10

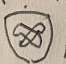

- Sketch 10 revised
- simplify the flag

Business Card 2

Design Process Reflection:

In evolving from my initial to first design, I made several key changes. My first business card had limited designs on it. The golf ball was just cut out, so it was an empty circle. I kept the golf ball tee because it is a big part of me. The golf ball design evolved beautifully. I used a golf tee, a knobby engraved and cut. The golf ball was engraved and the "Emory Golf" was cut. A major idea I discussed was the Blacktown Logo , I really like the idea, however, not a lot of people understood what it was. Reflecting on my design process; I realize my process was more iterative than linear, as I revisited many concepts, revising on them through each sketch. This allowed for a more dynamic development process that led to a well-suited business card.
